Karissa Gomez was born on November 29th, 1996 in Santee, California, and moved to the Imperial Valley when she was three years old. Here, she started school at T.L. Waggoner Elementary and went to Imperial High where she graduated from. After high school, Karissa attended Imperial Valley College to obtain her Associates for transfer in Liberal Studies. Karissa plans on continuing her academic journey in education at SDSU's Credential and Masters program.

"I attended SDSU-IV campus because of how family oriented I am, all my family lives in the valley and I could not imagine my college career without the support of them. I like SDSU-IV campus because of how united the staff and students are. Since it's a small student population, everyone knows everyone, which makes a comfortable and fun learning environment. My future plans are to become a high school ESL teacher, and later obtain my master's in administration to become a principal at a school. "
